Are you wondering how much say and choice to give to your preschooler? Do you typically ask him what restaurant he'd like to eat at and then wonder if you should have? You notice that your youngster is starting to want her way more and more. Is she telling you "you're not the boss of me!" And is your preschooler expecting that things should be his way and getting angry when there're not?

In this book, the story for preschoolers teaches them why parents say no and the guidance section for parents will teach you how much choice and control to give your youngster, when and how to say no, how to get on the right track so your child knows you're in charge, how to be assertive enough and how to provide the right balance between your preschoolers' needs and yours.

You'll find out how much to expect of your young child, what rules to have, why your kids are not listening to you. Learn how to work together as a parenting team to be on the same page with each other. And learn from examples of other families who needed to teach their youngsters that mommies and daddies can't always say yes.
